

COVID-19 | Unemployment Insurance and Pandemic Assistance

Frequently Asked Questions

Who administers the unemployment insurance program?

The Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation (DETR) administers the Nevada Unemployment Insurance (UI) program. Nevada workers who have experienced job losses through no fault of their own may be eligible for unemployment compensation. The CARES Act made some important temporary changes for workers on both the federal and state level were made to the program to accommodate new COVID-19-related applications. Information on those changes can be found on the state's website, and it will be updated regularly.

How much can I get from unemployment insurance?

It depends on Nevada state law and your previous earnings. Between now and July 31, 2020, an additional $600 will be added to every unemployment compensation check, so no one will receive less than $600 per week.

What if I am not eligible for traditional unemployment insurance?

The CARES Act established a temporary program called the Pandemic Assistance Program that temporarily (through December 31, 2020) expands unemployment insurance to cover individuals who are not traditionally covered, including the self-employed, gig-workers, independent contractors, and workers with irregular work history. It also expands the list of allowable criteria for claiming unemployment compensation to include many reasons related to the COVID-19 public health emergency. Contact the Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation (DETR) unemployment office or visit their website to determine your eligibility.

What if I have been out of work because of COVID-19 for several weeks already?

If you exhaust the weeks of unemployment compensation available to you through Nevada state law, you will be eligible for an additional 13 weeks of benefits. These benefits will be federally-funded, but you will still receive them through Nevada's Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation (DETR).

How long will the expanded benefits be in place?

Expanded eligibility for unemployment insurance will be in effect until December 31, 2020. A $600 additional benefit will be added to unemployment compensation received for weeks between when the bill was enacted in March and July 31, 2020.

Is there a waiting period?

The CARES Act includes incentives for states to waive the waiting week between applying for unemployment compensation and receiving it. Governor Steve Sisolak has temporarily waived the requirement that applicants need to wait 7 days after they have been terminated from a job to apply for UI, and has waived the requirement that applicants have to show they are actively looking for work.

How do I file an application for unemployment insurance?

You can apply now for traditional unemployment compensation through the unemployment office in Nevada's DETR here.

- If you are a classified worker who previously did not qualify for traditional unemployment insurance benefits (e.g. contractors, gig-worker), you now may qualify under the Pandemic Unemployment Assistance program. While this program is not yet fully functional, DETR is researching vendors to provide services and programming changes to implement the new system as soon as possible. Check back to the website regularly for updates on the application process.

What if I do not have access to a computer or the Internet to file a return?

If you do not have access to a computer, you can call the DETR Call Center Monday through Friday from 8:00am to 8:00pm (PST). Please do not hesitate to try calling them again if you had trouble reaching them previously. DETR has recently expanded its call center capacity to accommodate the increase in calls.

Does the emergency cash payment affect my unemployment claim?

No, there is no impact to your eligibility. The CARES Act temporarily expands unemployment insurance to cover individuals who are not traditionally covered, including the self-employed, gig-workers, independent contractors, and workers with irregular work history. It also expands the list of allowable criteria for claiming unemployment compensation to include many reasons related to the COVID-19 public health emergency. Contact the unemployment office in Nevada or the state where you worked to determine your eligibility.
